GROUPING FOR INSTRUCTION

All courses are designed according to the level of difficulty. These levels of ability are important because they reflect the degree of difficulty of courses. Quality points vary according to the difficulty of the course (determines Honor Roll). Teachers are not to change course ability levels without prior approval of the principal.

COURSE WEIGHTINGS AND HONOR ROLL STATUS

Levels of ability are important because they not only reflect the academic demands of courses, but they also indicate the quality points used in determining honor roll status. To be considered for the honor roll, a student must carry at least five units of work in that marking period.
